ABSTRACT

Designed to promote the awareness and effectiveness of cross-generational programs that enrich learning experiences, this directory consists of an introduction, 64 descriptions of intergenerational programs that are arranged in alphabetical order by the name of the town or city in which they operate, and an index of programs arranged by type of program. (The program types include academic course connection, annual event, arts, employment, foster grandparents, friendly visitor and related programs, meals, pairing programs, preschool, and volunteers in schools.) Each program description includes the title of the program; the name and telephone number of a contact person; a description of the program; the duration of the program; the financial supporters the program; the services offered to other programs; and, in some cases, other information (such as how many people participate). Also listed within the directory are the members of the Massachusetts Board of Education and the Massachusetts Community Education Advisory Council and the addresses and phone numbers of the six regional educational centers of the Massachusetts Department of Education.

INTRODUCTION

Intergenerational programming is a powerful, exciting concept whose time has come! Older and younger people are collaborating on a broad variety of activities which are expanding their knowledge and skills while increasing their cross-generational understanding.

For too many people, intergenerational interaction is an infrequent occurrence. Patterns of living and learning in the 1980's tend to separate rather than integrate age groups. Because generations of families seldom live in the same town or state, children and their parents are deprived of the wisdom that senior citizens have to share. Older adults are enjoying longer, healthier, and more active lives, but often have few opportunities to share their energy and interests with younger people.

Intergenerational programs are being designed and implemented by many educational and other institutions to enrich the lives of children and adults of all ages and to promote communication, understanding, and cross-generational ties. Schools, museums, senior citizen residences and centers, cultural, religious and higher education institutions, youth groups, nursery schools, civic organizations, and others have developed educational, social, cultural, and recreational activities that draw upon the skills, expertise, and experience of senior citizens while enriching children's learning and playing opportunities. In addition, younger people have the opportunity to work with a broad range of elders, expanding their concept of what it means to "grow old" and increasing their respect and compassion for older people.

The Massachusetts Board of Education, in its Policy Paper on Community Education, recommends that educators bring "into the schools the diverse experience and expertise of all segments of the community." In helping to implement this goal, the Board-appointed Community Education Advisory Council established an Intergenerational Education subcommittee to promote the awareness and effectiveness of cross-generational programs that enrich learning experiences. One of the projects of this subcommittee has been the dissemination of a survey that has contributed to the profiles included in this book. These school and community based programs, which reflect the diverse ways in which people of all ages are learning from and with each other, are offered as models which can be adapted in other communities and settings. We extend our appreciation to Fran Pratt, former Chairperson of the Intergenerational Education subcommittee, and Richard Griffen, of the Center for Understanding Aging, for the work they have put into this Directory.

The Directory is published by the Department of Education's Office of Community Education, which, in a 1985 position paper, described intergenerational education as an approach that increases the awareness by students, teachers, administrators, senior citizens, and the general population of:

1. The need for helping students develop healthy and positive attitudes about the aged and aging.
2. Programs and projects that have successfully and productively bridged the ages.
3. Strategies for achieving success in these programs.

The Office of Community Education is available to provide technical assistance and information on developing and expanding intergenerational programming. For additional copies of this Directory and more information on intergenerational education, please contact:

PROGRAM DESCRIPTIONS

AMHERST

Title of Program	Bridge Between Generations
Contact Person	Nancy Pagano, Leisure Services Director, Amherst Senior Center, 70 Boltwood Walk, Amherst, MA 01002; (413) 253-9351
Program Description	Twenty fifth and sixth grade public school children are paired with elders from the Amherst Senior Center, meeting once a month as a group over the nine months of the school year. Activities are planned around a theme for the year: in 1987-88, for example, the theme was "the Sea." Trips, arts projects, and other activities are planned which relate to the chosen theme. One-to-one relationships are formed, with participants encouraged to get together on their own outside of the time for formal activities.
Duration of Program	Four years.
Financing	A combination of school, agency and municipal grant funds, along with modest private donations.
Service to Other Programs	Will respond to inquiries by telephone and mail; will welcome visitors to observe; technical assistance offered without charge.
Additional Information	Because many more children than elders are available for participation in the program, it is necessary to screen the children who apply. The school principal does this screening, giving preference to children with the greatest need.

AMHERST

Title of Program	Friendly Visitor/Academic Internship Programs
Contact Person	Roger Ochs, Activity Director, Amherst Nursing Home, 150 University Drive, Amherst, MA 01002; (413) 256-8185
Program Description	University of Massachusetts students serve as one-on-one companions to residents of the nursing home through a friendly visitor and an internship program. Students can receive academic credit for this service. Although the relationships are designed for one semester, in forty percent of the pairings they have lasted for several semesters and, in some cases (twelve percent), have continued beyond graduation. No limits placed on number of students who are friendly visitors; the internship, however, is limited to two students per semester.
Duration of Program	More than five years.
Financing	None required.
Service to Other Programs	Technical assistance or training provide without charge.
Additional Information	The six students involved in friendly visiting in 1987-88 came from a gerontology practicum at the University. The interns, primarily social service majors, work 24-40 hours a week on projects tailored to their areas of academic specialization.

AMHERST

Title of Program	Mark's Meadow School Visits
Contact Person	Roger Ochs, Activity Director, Amherst Nursing Home, 150 University Drive, Amherst, MA 01002; (413) 256-8185
Program Description	During the school year, equal numbers of first and fifth graders from a local public school visit the nursing home monthly. They participate in exercises, games, music, and special activities with their "older friends." In turn, individual elders come to the classrooms as guest speakers for oral history sessions, poetry reading, Braille writing, and to demonstrate special skills.
Duration of Program	More than five years.
Financing	None required; school system provides transportation.
Service to Other Programs	Technical assistance or training provided without fee. Inquiries by mail welcomed along with visits. Slide show and music presentation can be made by director if cost of transportation covered.
Additional Information	24 youngsters participated in the program, along with 36 elders and 6 functionally impaired adults over age thirty.

AMHERST

Title of Program	Toddler Time
Contact Person	Susan Pratt-Tobin, Recreation Director, Amherst Adult Day Center/Amherst Nursing Home, 150 University Drive, Amherst, MA 01002; (413) 256-8185
Program Description	Each month preschool age children, young adults, and elders have the opportunity to interact in an informal social setting. Their activities, which are generally unstructured, include playing ball, enjoying cookies and soft drinks, and singing songs together.
Duration of Program	2-4 years.
Financing	None required.
Service to Other Programs	Telephone and mail inquiries welcomed; visits can be arranged.
Additional Information	Twelve toddlers, 35 elders, and 6 parents usually comprise Toddler Time.

ANDOVER

Title of Program	Culinary Arts
Contact Person	Edward Coakley, Greater Lawrence Technical High School, 57 River Road, Andover, MA 01810; (617) 686-0194
Program Description	In collaboration with the nutrition department of Merrimack Valley Elder Services, this high school prepares daily meals year-round for more than 1700 elders. Under supervision, students plan and prepare the food as part of their vocational education. The meals are then transported to both congregate sites and individual homes in a dozen communities within the Merrimack Valley area.
Duration of Program	More than five years.
Financing	Title 111 of the Older Americans Act.
Service to Other Programs	Inquiries by telephone and visits are welcome.
Additional Information	Greater Lawrence Technical High School is also a meal site so students have some direct contact with elders. On special occasions, students also organize meals for elders living in the vicinity of the school.

ARLINGTON

Title of Program	LINKS (Linking Neighborhood Kids with Senior Citizens)
Contact Person	Dennis A. Mercurio, Career Education Specialist, Gibbs Junior High School, 30 Tufts Street, Arlington, MA 02174; (617) 646-1000 Ext. 3305
Program Description	A cooperative effort between the Arlington School System and the Council on Aging, this program puts students from two Junior High Schools into contact with elders in need of outdoor and yard services. Students are carefully screened and must follow detailed rules of procedure. Elders are screened by the Council on Aging.
Duration of Program	In operation for two years.
Financing	Payment for work done is made directly to students by elders who receive services. No other financing is required.
Service to Other Programs	Open to inquiries by mail, by telephone, and through visits.
Additional Information	The general objective of the program is to provide seventh and eighth graders, who are willing but often unable to get regular employment opportunities because of their age (12-14), with appropriate work opportunities. Elders, for their part, profit from having reliable youngsters available to help with necessary outdoor chores. One hundred students are involved, serving about one hundred and sixty elders.

ASHLAND

Title of Program	Pen Pal Project
Contact	Ruth Sullivan, Ashland Middle School, Concord Street Ashland, MA 01721. (617) 881-2126
Program Description	Sixteen fourth grade students exchange letters on a monthly basis with 16 residents of Mill Pond Rest Home. In the Spring there will be a "Meet Your Pen Pal Party" held at the rest home.
Duration of Program	Less than 1 year.
Financing	Not necessary.

ASHLAND

Title of Program	Special Elderly Program
Contact	Mrs. Nancy Weitz, Home Economics Department, Ashland High School, West Union Street, Ashland, MA 01721. (617) 881-1320
Program Description	Eighteen high school seniors in the Human Development Program volunteer one afternoon each week to visit with 22 residents of the Mill Pond Rest Home. The students are responsible for planning activities to be shared with the residents, e.g., games, reading, letter writing, crafts and holiday projects. The weekly visits are supplemented by classwork developed to increase the students' awareness and understanding of the aging process. As a final activity at the close of the school year, the residents are invited to attend Class Day activities at the school.
Financing	Minimal cost shared by Ashland High School and Mill Pond Rest Home.
Duration of Program	1 1/2 years.
Service to Other Programs	Will respond to telephone and mail inquiries.

ATTLEBORO

Title of Program	Youth Conference with Older Americans
Contact Person	Paula T. Sollitto, Student Council Advisor, Attleboro High School, Rathbun Willard Drive, Attleboro, MA 02703; (617) 222-5150
Program Description	This conference, held annually, brings together sixty elders and sixty high school students for discussion, entertainment, and socializing. The student council selects topics for small group discussions and invites appropriate speakers. The purpose of the conference is to bridge the gap between generations by opening channels of communication.
Duration of Program	More than five years.
Financing	Funded by the school.
Service to Other Programs	Will provide technical assistance free of charge; welcomes mail inquiries and visitors.
Additional Information	This program takes place on a school day during regular hours.

AVON

Title of Program	Community Action Program (CAP)
Contact Person	Paul H. Chapman, Administrative Assistant, Avon High School, West Main Street, Avon, MA 02322; (617) 583-4822
Program Description	In conjunction with two courses, Psychology and Psychology-Sociology, students go shopping with elders in Avon once each week and help them as needed.
Duration of Program	More than five years.
Financing	The school provides a bus used to transport the students who take part in the program
Service to Other Programs	Will respond to telephone and mail inquiries.

BELMONT

Title of Program	Aging and Society
Contact Person	Richard Kleponis, Chenery Middle School, 95 Washington Street, Belmont, MA 02178; (617) 484-1469
Program Description	Students in each social studies class visit the Belmont Manor Nursing Home, are given talks by staff members, discuss aging and nursing home life, and tour the facilities. Students then are assigned in pairs to visit residents each week for the following eight or ten weeks while keeping a journal of their experiences.
Duration of Program	More than five years.
Financing	Funded by the school.
Service to Other Programs	Technical assistance or training provided without charge; information provided by telephone and through visits.
Additional Information	One hundred students take part each year.

BELMONT

Title of Program	Belmont Intergenerational Program (B.I.P.)
Contact Person	Herb Baker, Belmont High School, 221 Concord Avenue, Belmont, MA 02178; (617) 484-4700
Program Description	Part of a psychology class at the high school, this program promotes intergenerational understanding by bringing together roughly equal numbers of older and younger people to discuss topics of mutual interest. A survey is done first to match interests and needs. The purpose of B.I.P. is to break down stereotypes and to help build good relationships among students and elders.
Duration of Program	In operation for less than four years.
Financing	Requires none.
Service to Other Programs	Will provide technical assistance free of charge and welcomes inquiries by mail and telephone, along with visits.
Additional Information	20 students and 25 elders involved.

BOSTON

Title of Program	Foster Grandparents
Contact Person	Ruth Blackman, Foster Grandparent Program, 178 Tremont Street, Boston, MA 02111; (617) 357-6000, Ext. 492.
Program Description	Low income men and women over sixty years of age are assigned to a variety of school sites including pre-school and early and upper elementary schools. During the summer, day-care centers, hospitals, and shelters are also included in the program. At these sites foster grandparents provide companionship, care, and counsel to children, some of whom have special needs.
Duration of Program	More than twenty years.
Financing	Funds come from the federal government.
Service to Other Programs	Free materials are available and inquiries by mail and telephone are welcome. Visits can be arranged.
Additional Information	Four hundred youngsters are served by this program that involves over one hundred elders.

BOSTON

Title of Program	Family Tours
Contact Person	Kathleen Davis, Education Coordinator, Isabella Stewart Gardner Museum, 2 Palace Road, Boston, MA 02115; (617) 566-1401.
Program Description	Tours with professional guides are available on request. Grandparents and children, or parents and children, can plan family celebrations featuring a private tour of the museum to mark anniversaries and birthdays.
Duration of Program	More than five years.
Financing	Tours are paid for by participants.
Additional Information	During Christmas school break, tours are offered free of charge to grandparents and children.

BOSTON

Title of Program	In Search of Grandmother's House
Contact Person	Joyce Stevens, School Programs Director, Historic Neighborhoods Foundation, 2 Boylston Street, Boston, MA 02116; (617) 426-1885.
Program Description	Involving third and fifth graders in five Boston public schools, this program features a two-month focus on social history. Children compare newspaper headlines, pictures, advertisements and articles from early decades of the 20th century with those of today. They interview, if possible, their grandmothers using historic photos of schools, factories, health centers, branch libraries, parks, and, whenever possible, neighborhood pictures to spark their grandmothers' memories. Students compare their grandmothers' recollections with today's urban life. This program also includes a bus tour for students and their grandmothers through city neighborhoods and has developed a display to which the participants have contributed.
Duration of Program	Started in January, 1987
Financing	State funds from the Cultural Resource Program of the Massachusetts Council on Arts & Humanities.
Service to Other Programs	Inquiries by mail and telephone are welcomed.
Additional Information	This program has served four hundred children and reached over two hundred grandmothers.

BOURNE/OLD STURBRIDGE VILLAGE

Title of Program	Crossing the Generations/Bourne
Contact Person	Patricia Barnicle, Coordinator, Museum Teaching Program, Sturbridge, MA 01566-0200; (617) 347-3362 Ext. 274
Program Description	Members of the Bourne Senior Center and Council on Aging, together with children from the Stone Elementary School at Otis Air Force Base, participate in this program which culminates in a field experience at Old Sturbridge Village which focuses on educational games and amusements.
Duration of Program	One year.
Financing	Partial funding comes from the Massachusetts Council on the Arts and Humanities.
Service to Other Programs	Assistance is available.

BROCKTON

Title of Program	RSVP - Elders Tutoring Elementary Students
Contact Person	Robert Flanagan, Adjustment Counselor, Raymond School, Brockton, MA 02401; (617) 580-7201.
Program Description	Elders from the RSVP program tutor early grade elementary school students in school during regular hours. The program targets hearing impaired students and others who have special needs. To equip them for this task, elders receive training from the teachers. About one hundred students are being served by eight elders.
Duration of Program	More than five years.
Financing	The federal RSVP Program.
Service to Other Programs	Will respond to inquiries by mail.

BURLINGTON

Title of Program	The Generation Link
Contact Person	Marlene Carroll, Home Economics Teacher, Marshall Simonds Middle School, Burlington, MA 01803; (617) 273-1870.
Program Description	A thirteen week course for two groups of twenty-five 8th grade students who meet for one class period per week. Course objectives include identification of myths and stereotypes of old age, examination of student attitudes toward the elderly, analysis of media influence, and the building of respect and good relations with elders. The lessons include visits to senior centers, senior housing, and hospitals. Elders, in turn, are invited to take part in special activities at the school.
Duration of Program	Three years.
Financing	In the first year, funds came from a special grant. In subsequent years, School Improvement Funds were used.
Service to Other Programs	Will respond to inquiries by mail and telephone.
Additional Information	About fifty elders participate along with the fifty students.

CAMBRIDGE

Title of Program	Foster Grandparents
Contact Person	Phyllis Kornfeld, Elementary Placement Coordinator, Cambridge School Volunteers, Cambridge Rindge & Latin School, 459 Broadway, Cambridge, MA 02139; (617) 498-9218.
Program Description	Elders provide companionship to children with special needs in four Cambridge elementary schools. They work four hours a day, five days a week, giving attention to the children assigned to them.
Duration of Program	More than five years.
Financing	Primarily from the federal program.
Service to Other Programs	Technical assistance or training offered free of charge; inquiries by mail, telephone, and visits are welcome.

CAMBRIDGE

Title of Program	Lifelines
Contact Person	Carole Chaet, Coordinator of Social Studies, Cambridge School Department, Cambridge Rindge & Latin High School, 459 Broadway, Cambridge, MA 02139; (617) 498-9200, Ext. 9473
Program Description	Students in seven elementary schools, working with their teachers, school librarians, and the director of the Cambridge Oral History Center, choose a research subject from the social studies curriculum. They are taught how to interview and are put in touch with elders in the community. Elders are brought to the schools; students visit nursing homes and senior centers; family members and neighbors are often included. Several meetings between elders and students allow the latter to explore in depth such topics as women and work in Cambridge during World War II; the Depression; and "tall stories" passed down in families.
Duration of Program	About three years.
Financing	Funds from the Massachusetts Council for the Arts and Humanities along with matching funds from the Cambridge Public Schools.
Service to Other Programs	Workshops are offered for a fee of thirty dollars and curriculum materials are available for a small additional fee. Inquiries by mail are welcome.
Additional Information	More than a thousand students and elders each are involved in the program.

CAMBRIDGE

Title of Program	The Social Gerontology Curriculum
Contact Person	Carole Chaet, Coordinator of Social Studies, Cambridge School Department, Cambridge Rindge & Latin High School, 459 Broadway, Cambridge, MA 02139; (617) 498-9200, Ext. 9473
Program Description	Every semester, psychology students meet with six elders from the community to explore issues of adolescence and aging in Cambridge. This program is cosponsored by the city's Civic Unity Commission. For two weeks the group participates in a structured curriculum of activities, films, and guest speakers that facilitate elders' and high school students' exploration of common concerns. Lasting friendships have frequently resulted from these encounters.
Duration of Program	More than five years.
Financing	Funds for stipends for the elders come from the school.
Service to Other Programs	For a small fee, technical assistance and training can be provided, along with materials. Inquiries by mail and visits are welcome.
Additional Information	About one hundred students and a dozen elders participate in the program each year.

CAMBRIDGE

Title of Program	Voices of the Fourth Season
Contact Person	Mark Samuels, Director, Elders' Art Communications, Inc., 566 Franklin Street, Cambridge, MA 02139; (617) 576-0634, 965-1157
Program Description	This is an issue-oriented theater company of older citizens which travels with an elders' art exhibit consisting of literary and visual arts by and about the elderly.
Duration of Program	More than five years; originally titled "Theater of Living History."
Financing	A variety of sources - goverment and private grants; modest donations from individuals, local businesses, and civic organizations; and fees charged to groups served by the program.
Service to Other Programs	For a fee, will give workshops led by members; welcome inquiries by mail and telephone; invite visitors to rehearsals.
Additional Information	The company will perform anywhere within Massachusetts for both older and younger audiences.

FALMOUTH

Title of Program	Intergenerational Learning Program
Contact Person	Mary Jo Inman, Director of Volunteers, Falmouth Nursing Home, 545 Main Street, Falmouth, MA 02541; (617) 548-3800
Program Description	Residents and staff from the nursing home visit elementary schools in Falmouth to talk about the experience of aging and to address students' stereotypes. Elders talk about local history as they have known it personally. Students, in turn, visit the nursing home and develop relationships with residents, such as, for example, becoming pen pals.
Duration of Program	Five years.
Financing	None required.
Service to Other Programs	Inquiries can be made by mail or telephone.

FALMOUTH

Title of Program	VIPS (Volunteers in Public Schools)
Contact Person	Patricia Silva, Coordinator of Community Programs, Falmouth High School, 874 Gifford Street, Falmouth, MA 02540; (617) 540-2200.
Program Description	Though not designed as an intergenerational program, VIPS has in the Falmouth public schools a core of volunteers which is made up of retired people. Some one hundred strong, these elders serve as tutors, administrative aides, and classroom, laboratory, and library helpers. Students, in turn, are placed as volunteers in settings in the community in which they can help elders in need.
Duration of Program	More than five years.
Financing	The majority of this program's funding comes from the Falmouth Public Schools; other funds are raised by a board of advisors and from payment for services.
Service to Other Programs	Technical assistance and some materials are available free of charge; other materials can be purchased. Inquiries by mail and telephone are welcomed. Visits may be arranged.
Additional Information	VIPS sends out invitations to four thousand local residents, between the ages 57 and 76, welcoming their involvement in the program.

FITCHBURG

Title of Program	Field Experiences - Human Services
Contact Person	Richard J. Spencer, Associate Professor of Behavioral Sciences, Fitchburg State College, Pearl Street, Fitchburg, MA 01420; (617) 345-2151, Ext. 3241
Program Description	As part of a course called "Working with the Aging," students must participate in a practicum that requires each student to visit two elders for two hours a week throughout a semester. During visits, students engage in conversation, reading aloud, letter writing, card games, crafts, walks, meals, etc. In connection with these activities, students stay in touch with local human services agency staff who supervise them. After completing course work in the human services curriculum, students can enroll in Field Work, a structured experience which allows senior students to apply what they have learned in class. Among the local human service agencies with which students can contract to work are those which specialize in helping elders.
Duration of Program	More than five years.
Financing	Funds come ultimately from the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, which supports Fitchburg State College.
Service to Other Programs	Technical assistance or training is available without charge. Inquiries by mail and telephone are welcome; visits may be arranged.
Additional Information	The practicum enrolls twenty-five students. Working with students in other programs, they serve more than one hundred and twenty-five elders.

FRAMINGHAM

Title of Program	A Touch of Love; Humanities Program
Contact Person	Doris Mathieson, Vice-Principal of Framingham North High School, A Street, Framingham, MA 01701; (617) 620-4963
Program Description	A Touch of Love: students sponsor elderly statesmen or senior citizens on one day each year. Humanities Program: students sponsor a luncheon for elders at St. Patrick's Manor, a nursing home in Framingham.
Duration of Program	Less than four years.
Financing	Provided by the school.
Service to Other Programs	Will provide technical assistance or training to others without charge; inquiries by telephone or mail welcome.
Additional Information	Twenty-five elders are served by 25 students in the "Touch of Love" program.

FRAMINGHAM

Title of Program	Junior Interns
Contact Person	Stanley M. Slotnick, Director of Volunteer Services, Cushing Hospital, Dudley Road, Framingham, MA 01701; (617) 872-4301, Ext. 275
Program Description	Young teenagers assist staff in the hospital wards by visiting patients, helping serve meals, and aiding patients who wish to attend social events such as picnics and card games. This program runs during the summer, three days a week. At its conclusion, interns receive a plaque and certificate attesting to their work.
Duration of Program	More than five years.
Financing	Provided by the hospital, which is state-funded.
Service to Other Programs	Technical assistance and training available without charge; inquiries by mail and telephone welcome.
Additional Information	Participants limited to twelve teenagers.

FRAMINGHAM

Title of Program	Lifelong Learning Program at Framingham State College
Contact	Dr. Marion Cohen, Sociology Department, Framingham State College, 100 State Street, Framingham, MA 01701; (617) 626-4854
Program Description	The program works to provide intergenerational activities on campus by providing opportunities for older adults to become part of the college community. During the Spring of 1987 a very successful "Back to School Week" was held to familiarize Seniors with the campus and with academic programs available tuition free to Massachusetts residents over 60 years of age. In addition, assistance was available at the beginning of each semester to help with registration for classes. During the Fall of 1987 a symposium, "Growing Up and Growing Older," was held on campus. During the day young and old were able to exchange ideas and opinions on issues that face people of all ages. Plans are now underway for a Spring symposium that will explore the myths and realities of aging. In addition to the symposium, a workshop will be held in March on the effects of work and leisure in the life cycle.
Financing	From organizations who co-sponsor events. The program has received support from the Student Government Association, the Center for Understanding Aging, Project Reward and the college.
Duration of Program	1 year.
Service to Other Programs	Will respond to visits and telephone and mail inquiries.
